The Sydney Morning Herald.

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 12, 1859.

In the Legislative Assembly, yesterday, after some papers had been laid upon the table.

Mr. PLUNKETT asked—

Whether the Government had received any certain intelligence of the speedy separation of the district of Moreton Bay from the colony of New South Wales.

2. Whether the Ministers have taken into consideration the legal effect such separation will have upon the powers of the House of Assembly, under the Electoral Act of 1858?

3. Whether they have taken into consideration the necessity of amending the Electoral Act in order to provide against the contingency of such separation, and also to provide for the return of the number of members specified in the third section of the Electoral Act?

The COLONIAL SECRETARY said that he had gone through all the despatches which had been received at Government House by the last mail, but he had found none in respect to the separation of Moreton Bay from New South Wales.

With regard to the two letters, he hoped the hon. member would defer till he had an opportunity of conferring with the Crown Law Officers.

The COLONIAL SECRETARY subsequently said that it had been intimated that the Government at home had been in preparation with a view to the separation of Moreton Bay from this colony.

Mr. PLUNKETT moved—

That an address be presented to the Governor-General, praying that his Excellency will be pleased to cause to be laid upon the table of the House, all papers and correspondence between the Government and Mr. Lancelot Surveyor Henry Jackson, relative to that officer's removal from the public service, and his recent re-appointment as a licensed surveyor, but without employment.

Some explanation and debate ensued, in which both Mr. PLUNKETT and Mr. ROBERTSON took part, in reference to the course they had pursued with regard to the gentleman mentioned.

Mr. GEORGE MACLEAY moved the adoption of the report of the Murray River Navigation Committee.

The Australian Colonies of Moreton Bay, and in a short and graceful trespass on the time of the House, he gave the honorable members before his departure for Europe. The honorable member's few sentences were characterized by the kindest feelings towards all parties, and were received in the same cordial spirit by the House. The motion was carried.

Mr. JENNINGS moved—

That an address be presented to the Governor-General, praying that his Excellency will be pleased to cause to be laid upon the table of the House, copies of all correspondence and documents relating to the City Corporation, or raised for the benefit thereof on the credit of the colony.

The honorable member was proceeding to address the House, but was counted out five minutes past five, when the House adjourned till Tuesday next.

THE Sublime will convey our shores several colonists who have acted a prominent part in our political affairs. Mr. DONALDSON, the Premier—Premier under that form of Responsible Government which promised the colony so much, and which has yielded so little; Mr. TOOTH, one of the members for Sydney, a gentleman greatly respected in all the relations of life, and whose brief absence will not prevent his taking his seat at the opening of the new Parliament, should solid worth be preferred by electors to the more showy attractions which have too often allured them.

The events which have taken place have tended to display the principles, talents, and public spirit of our most able politicians, to judge them with accuracy. The most dispassionate spectators are apt to take their sides, and thus to view everything in the lights and shadows of their own standpoint.

This is not the moment for the friends of our public men to act the part of eulogists; and we have not reached the period when history consigns to oblivion all that is trivial or incidental, and cuts in sharp outline their true figure. Mr. DONALDSON carries with him the reputation of considerable ability, and a character which, for public and private life, is never beyond question. Success in public life is connected with, often the reward of—qualities the reverse of those possessed by Mr. DONALDSON.

Those who go home for years must expect to find much altered in their absence. Beside that the decrease which restores to the dust is ever in course of execution, and thence the ranks of our friends and foes, new faces continually appear on the theatre of life, and all our social interests are disintegrated and combined anew.

Mr. DONALDSON will find much altered when he shall return; a sadder, perhaps—for that is the effect of time on higher natures—but a wiser and better man. He will, no doubt, find many to greet his return among the multitudes, whether his opponents in politics or not who hail him as a friend.

Colonists who have been stationary for the last few years must have noted, not without some feeling of regret, the transient nature of all our political and social relations. "The world is a stage, and we are actors," may be applied with special propriety to those who have figured for their hour. Scarcely a name of eminence remains its position in our programme. The men of the former regime have all but disappeared, and those by whom they were superseded have already grown politically old. It is but the other day when WENTWORTH was in the thick of the battle; but what a succession of candidates for power have filled up the brief space of time which divides us from the epoch of WENTWORTH's glory. We are already confused and fatigued in the confusion. Many incidents, in those contests for power, have left us the stain of disgrace if the stern laws of oblivion, fatal to mediocrity both of men and events, had not destined that they should be practically forgotten. Since we received the "boom" of responsible government, we have seen nothing but change. The eager competition for the untied sweets of power has been followed by disgust as soon as they have been tasted. "Ministers" have flitted rather than walked across the stage. The DONALDSON Ministry, first in order of time, disclaimed power offered on base conditions, and abandoned it.

Mr. PARKER felt himself always the head of an interim Ministry; and as he had never sought power and held it without enthusiasm, so he seemed rather to escape from it than to resign it. Mr. COWPER has continued to live on, but he is the survivor of all his original companions. We have seen them quit him in quick succession, but his ability as a recruiting officer is prodigious.

His colours are faded, and the promise he has made become stale, but there he is recruiting still. He has suggested the idea of one permanent head of the Ministry, without fixity in his politics and party attachments. A change of Ministry will not imply a resignation of the Premier, but merely a change in his following and his programme.

There can be little doubt that the great proportion of leading men, who have quitted those shores, have done so to escape the disgust and disappointment attendant on the working of Constitutional Government. They have seen with a surprise, that we certainly have never participated, that the WENTWORTH Constitution excluded from a share in the Government the very class to whom it was once exclusively confined.

It is amusing to see the jealous opposition to persons of this sort. There is a general galling when a "swell" has to be beaten. Considering how our population has been made up—how many social contradictions have been generated by our peculiar history—one cannot be astonished that the passion for equality which always aspires to level upwards, reveals itself in hostility to all who were ever supposed to pretend to social exclusion. We often hear that in America the upper ten thousand are under a political ban. They have great weight in private life: they are limited by all below them. In benevolent projects demanding money they are admitted to take a part; in mercantile affairs they have their natural influence, but in politics they are nowhere. The deference paid them in other forms is avenged by political exclusion. That love of equality which, as Dr. GRIFFITH shows, a certain degree of nobleness in it, has been exasperated into a mean jealousy of social distinctions, well-founded and useful as they may be. That Jack is as good as his master, in a system of universal suffrage, is a truth which all are bound to recognize, but the popular interpretation makes him better: a more acceptable embodiment of the fascinating ideal.

This "going home" has, however, given a new aspect to the duties of public men who remain, both as the advocates of a form of Government, and as the members of a party. We do not blame any man who has the power to visit the metropolis of the empire. We know too well the yearnings of the heart, and which twenty years' absence have not been able to suppress. In the instance of Mr. GEORGE MACLEAY—a gentleman of great good sense and elevated character—"going home" has been a duty imposed by deep domestic affliction. But then those who leave should be a little reasonable towards those who stay behind. "Stand to your guns, boys," is very easily said, but not always possible. We have lately passed a Reform Bill: one which we are willing to hope will be found less inconsistent with stability and purity in government than at first appears. But what would have been the power of constitutional resistance to a dangerous experiment had those who remained—those who were left to fight the last; but so left—we do not say deserted or abandoned—we have done all that could be done, and we are free to confess that if we have not a bill widely democratic, it is rather because our opponents were won over to concessions and compromises—that, in fact, they were desirous of modifications which they did dare to suggest, than that they were conquered by our numerical strength. It is easy to drop down with the colonial side; but to advance in the other direction is to stem a cataract.

Among our public losses the projected departure of Mr. Justice TIERNEY is not the least to be lamented. Our limits will not now permit us to do justice to his long, honourable, and useful career. A liberal when the Government was exclusive, he has endeavoured to infuse moderation into the party which has triumphed, at least in the recognition obtained of liberal principles. Mr. Justice TIERNEY has been always a favourite with the profession and with the public. Ever compassionate and humane, he has had firmness to vindicate the law. In social life, Mr. Justice TIERNEY has always been the delight of his companions. Witty, like most of his countrymen; full of anecdote, and radiant with kindness, he has the qualities which especially attach and preserve friendships. He has long served the colony, and is entitled to the repose he naturally seeks in the land of his birth. We wish he may long enjoy the happiness for which he hopes. It must be a strange feeling to have nothing to do; to have quarter-day without care or toil.

MELBOURNE.

[BY ELECTRIC TELEGRAPH.]

Melbourne, Friday, 6 p.m.

Mr. STODOLSKY withdrew his motion last night in the Assembly, on the chief of the Opposition intimating to him that he was not the man to be entrusted with a motion of so much consequence. Mr. Stodolsky was a supporter of the Government until they refused his amendment for the Chief Commissionership of Police.

Framment is to be postponed next week, and will be discussed as soon as the machinery for the new election is completed.

In Chambers, to-day, Mr. Justice Williams discharged all persons imprisoned for debt in the Melbourne gaol, who have been committed by magistrates. This is done upon the application of the Solicitor-General; therefore, Fellows! As falls to the ground, as regards the recovery of debt before magistrates.

The railway to Sanbury is fairly opened. Coaches for the diggings now start from the Sanbury terminus.

A grand cricket dinner will be given to-morrow, on the Melbourne cricket ground, to welcome the Victorian eleven. A scratch-match is to be played first.

Trade is very dull.

Everybody preparing their correspondence for the Sabbath.

The Juan Fernandez, from New York, has 4000 barrels of coal on board.

The gold exports arrived this afternoon with 32,093 ozs. gold.

Weather fine and warm.

Nothing of importance stirring.

Business during the week has been rather better, showing considerable briskness.

The prices of several articles have changed since my last report.

The supply of the Australian wool character has been unusually large for a November sale, whilst the limited amount of the European wool, which is much to be commended, is largely advanced in these directions.

THE ELECTIONS OF THE SOUTH RIDING OF CUMBERLAND.—Gentlemen,—Urgent private affairs demanding my return for a time to Europe, I am compelled reluctantly to bid you farewell. The confidence which, during the two last sessions of Parliament, you have been so good as to repose in me has been rendered more gratifying by the invariable kindness with which you have received me whenever I have been in the neighbourhood, whether in electing a town or in social life, to meet with you.

I leave this noble country with regret—but I do hope to see you among you again—when, should you require my public services, they shall be freely placed at your disposal.

With my good wish to you all individually and collectively, I am, gentlemen, your grateful and obedient servant.

Kell House, 10th February, 1859.

THE OLD HOUSE IN PARK-STREET.—SAINT VALENTINE'S DAY.
O, what a fond lover was Saint Valentine,
O, what a fond lover was Saint Valentine,
Thought, surely in his day, none more true,
Or his heart would have been so true.

Love may not despise to plead in maidens' eyes,
But those maidens have much to fear,
Who cannot meet and whose heart fails
Thee, O, what a fond lover was Saint Valentine.

With this we have nothing to do—
We only wish our lovers married,
And bid you—know you or no,
Because, if you are married, it is true.

It is true to enlarge our trade,
And you, and you, and you, and you,
None better than ours can be made,
As you'll find when in need of a cradle.

LEAS IMPROVED AMERICAN FLOATING BALL WASHING AND WRINGING MACHINE. The little old song, that "There's no luck about the house," has received its death-blow. "The washing day," that dread curse of husbands, is of the past; there is emancipated from the execrating torture of careless washerwomen; buttons are no longer broken by the hands of the laundress; clothes, if not more, clean shirts may now be had at the cost of one, and the operation of metamorphosing solid linen into spotted purity may proceed beneath the eye and nose of the master of the house without filling his home with steam, and its owner with the sulks. The rapidity with which all this may be brought about is no less a marvel, and is daily demonstrated at Mr. E. LEA'S, 15, Park-street, Sydney.

Dear Sir,—The washing machine I had from you some time ago I find answers admirably, and is a great saving of time and labour.

Mr. E. Lea, 15, Park-street.

Balmain, June 2nd, 1858.
Sir,—I am happy to testify to the efficiency of your washing machine, one of which has been used in my family nearly three months, and gives every satisfaction, and I shall feel great pleasure in recommending it to all who study domestic comfort with economy.

J. G. HARRISON.

Liverpool-street, Darlinghurst.
Mrs. T. B. M.—Darling Point, will be much obliged if Mr. Lea will take one of his washing machines, (like the one I had, which answers admirably), to my house, convenient, and just show the servant how it is used. She has a Kent's knife-cutting machine, which cost eight guineas, or she would have one of your knife and fork cleaners also.

Mrs. F. Berr.

William-street, Sydney, October 13, 1858.
Sir,—I have now tried your Floating Ball Washing and Wringing Machine several weeks, and I with pleasure testify to the very satisfactory manner in which it does its work, and to the great saving, as well as to the little wear to the linen. Below I hand you the expense of my usual weekly wash, it consists of about 200 lbs. of linen, 10 lbs. of soap, and a small quantity of soda, which I use in the usual manner.

One woman and keep for two days and a-half £12 6
Soap 8d. per lb., 10 lbs., 8s. 0 8
Fire 2s. 6d. per lb., 10 lbs., 2s. 6d. 0 3
Total £13 3

Cost of putting out to wash at the moderate charge of 1s. 6d. per dozen, 25 dozen £15 3

Saving effected by this machine per week, 18s. 3d. Ladies' dresses, caps, &c., are all washed by the machine.

Mr. E. Lea, 15, Park-street.

Also, Lea's Patent Press Knife and Fork Cleaner will clean 24 knives and forks in four minutes, and will save the trouble of washing them by hand.

PATENT VENTILATING PERAMBULATORS.—To be had only at LEA'S, 15, Park-street.

The Town of Watup's Use

BOWDEN and THRELKEID are favoured with instructions from the proprietors, who are closing the affairs of the Sydney and Melbourne Steam Packet Company, to sell by auction, at the City Hall, 362, George-street, on THURSDAY, the 3rd day of March next, at 11 o'clock precisely,

The whole of the unland allotments in the delightfully situated township of Watson's Bay, commanding the most enchanting views of the harbour of Port Jackson, divided originally into 141 spacious allotments, together with Cove Beach, and Point. Twenty have frontages to Watson's Bay; twenty-seven front the esplanade reserved for the public, round the margin of the bay. The remaining allotments have frontages to various streets and the new Government road. All have been pegged out by the surveyor.

This magnificent estate comprises the whole of the north-eastern sweep of Watson's Bay and Camp Cove, situated, as it were, at the very gates of Port Jackson, extending from the esplanade to the water's edge.

Waters. Parker at the well-known "Camp" washed on the entire south and west frontages by the cliffs of the inner and bordered on the north-east by the water, which shields this charming spot from the vast Pacific Ocean.

In introducing the sale of such property as this, it must be said that the property is superb and the unnecessary on the part of the auctioneer to give any into any adequate or comprehensive description of the immense advantages, conveniences, and attractions of this truly desirable property, which no two opinions have, and which may be held either by the highest or the lowest with the spot, that no place in or out of the colonies can rank with it in perfection, whether for salubrity, beauty, or utility. It is a property in the world on board, like Sydney, of such a delightful situation, that it is accessible both by land and by water, to all the islands

Here, at the same moment, can the eye scan, on the one side, the enchanting scenery of our unequalled harbour, and on the other the wondrous majesty of the South Pacific.

Here can at the charms of a country life be insured without any of its drawbacks: an hour's drive on the loveliest road in the colonies, or half an hour's trip by the steamer, are all that separates from the convenience attendant upon a city residence; whilst on the spot you feel that freedom from annoyance and cares of the city, as if it were a hundred miles away. Nothing like sand and weariness can there be felt; the invigorating freshness of the sea breeze; the constant stream of inward and outward shipping, which, whether inside or outside the harbour,

The convenience for bathing, fishing, boating, &c., are each of themselves attractions of no mean considerations; and to all these may be added the important fact that Watson's Bay must, from its unrivalled and peculiar position, remain for ever unchanged in all its lovely features.

Numerous have been the applications from parties anxious to secure extensive blocks of this property for the erection of villas, hotels, and boarding-houses; but the proprietors, taking into consideration the fact that expressed for that public sale of the estate, together with the feeling that there is no second Watson's Bay in the colony, they have determined upon accepting none of the private offers, but submit the entire property for public competition, so that if any of those now so anxious to purchase should then neglect so to do, they will have only themselves to blame for the regret they must ever after feel, in having lost an opportunity of securing a portion. It may be almost unnecessary, perhaps, to remind those intending to submit their offers, that the property is

It would be impossible to lay before the public, in the columns of a newspaper, anything like an adequate description of the various lots, standing, as they do, over a mile or two of water and street frontage; a special description is therefore requested, immediately, to the large plan now on view at the Mart, and of which lithographic plans will be furnished.

Title unexceptionable, and printed abstracts thereof may be seen any time before the day of sale, on application to Messrs. ALLEN and BOWDEN, the vendors' solicitors.

Terms.—20 per cent. cash, the remainder by bills at 6 and 12 months, with interest at 6 per cent.

To Capitalists in search of a good permanent investment, or Innkeepers wishing to possess a first-class Business Premises, with an extensive trade, established for ten years, in a very busy part of George-street, at the corner of Argyle-street, now extended through the Dockyard to the Circular Wharf at the Watermen's Stairs, causing the passenger traffic to pass into George-street, at the corner on which stands the well-known MARINE HOTEL, so long and successfully

This splendid Hotel, with the Butcher's Shop adjoining on the north side, and a large and valuable building site in Argyle-street, separated from the hotel by a back entrance, together with a Cottage in Upper Fort-street, will be sold, without reserve, pursuant to a decree of the Supreme Court, with the approbation of the Master in Equity,—by

POWDEN and THRELKELD, at the City

BOWDEN and THRELKELD, at the City Mart, 362, George-street, on THURSDAY, the 17th day of February instant, at 11 o'clock.
LOT 1.—That valuable and extensive block of buildings, known as the Marine Hotel, at the corner of George and Argyll streets, erected of stone and brick—the basement of stone, all above of brick—of extra strength and superior workmanship; erected

In the basement is a large kitchen and three large and dry cellars, with good drainage.

The First Floor, on which is a very handsome drawing-room, neatly papered, finished with an elegant cornice, and joiners work far above the common style of buildings. The windows command beautiful views of the Cove, harbour, and shipping, having an eastern aspect, which ensures the cool and refreshing sea breezes during the summer months. On this floor are three commodious and lofty bedrooms; all sashes of large size and double hung.

On the Second Floor are five bedrooms, four of them large and lofty, and one of smaller dimensions. These rooms are in character with other portions of the building, and regard being had to size, light, and ventilation. The greater elevation affords more extensive views than from the windows on the first floor. All the partitions (except one short one on the top floor) are of solid brickwork; many of the walls oil painted, and the whole in the best possible condition. Water laid on.

To the yard there is an entrance from the rearward lane.

LOT 2.—The Butcher's shop, adjoining the hotel, is which a very extensive trade has been conducted for years, both with families and with the shipping, more particularly the latter, owing to its admirable position for such a business, not being second to any in the city for that extensive and profitable trade. At the rear of the shop, with entrance from the lot, is

LOT 3.—A fine building site for a shop, commencing in

LOT 4.—A verandah Cottage in Upper For-street, directly opposite the Flagstaff one door south of Hope Cottage, bounded on the west by the building line of Port-street 40 links, on the north by allotment 13, bearing easterly 59 links, on the east by allotment No. 15, bearing northerly 40 links, and on the north by allotment No. 15, bearing westerly 59 links. The Cottage on this allotment contains four rooms, and has a side-entrance to the rear. It has been occupied by Mr. McMahon for some years, and now held by him at a greatly reduced rent of £25 a-year.

The Auctioneers wish to direct the attention of purchase to the faithful manner in which the hotel has been constructed, and equally so to the very important position on which it stands. The recent removal of the Dock-yard wall, at the end of Argyle-street, and the continuation of that street on to the Circular Wharf, past the hotel to the Watermen's Stairs, must very considerably increase the business of the hotel and the butcher's shop, as hundreds of passengers will now pass directly in front of these premises on landing from boats, steamers, &c., or on leaving the shore for their respective vessels or destinations.

A plan may be imposed on the Mart. Particulars of this may be learned on application to James Hart, Esq., solicitor, Elizabeth-street: or at the office of the Master in Equity, Supreme Court House, King-street.

Terms at sale.
